WINTER & SPRING 2018

YEARS OF THE PARTY

Platinum Party

Revolutionary from the beginning, this year we're celebrating the platinum anniversary of the party.

During a time of limited opportunities for women, Tupperware empowered and trained women in an all-new way for products to reach consumers—the home party.

As home parties gained popularity, Tupperware became a household name. And party pioneer Brownie Wise became the first female on the cover of BUSINESS WEEK.

After an important role in the women's cultural-revolution, we're still a place where people can be themselves and grow into who they are meant to be. We cheer each other to success.

So why, after 70 years, do people still love Tupperware parties? Because no matter the decade, we offer innovative ways to prepare, store and serve real food. And it feels really good to support a local entrepreneur, your Tupperware Consultant.

Thanks for partying with us!

1946

Earl Tupper invents our famous seal, inspired by an inverted paint can lid.

1951

Brownie Wise is named Tupperware Home Parties' vice president (You go, Girl!) and general sales manager. She later becomes the first female on the cover of BUSINESS WEEK magazine.

1967

The Shape-O® Toy joins the ever-growing product line.

1948

The first Tupperware party is held and in-home demonstrations help Tupperware sales to soar.

1960

The car program continues putting women in the driver's seat of their own, free car (and their income).

my STORY

My friend had a Tupperware party and although I couldn't attend, I looked through the catalog and was going to order a few items. So when I saw the Business Kit in the back of the catalog, I wanted to get those products at a great value.

At this time, I was starting a holistic nutrition business and working in a health food store.

Once I had my daughter, I went on maternity leave and decided to take on Tupperware full swing. I was happy to find that it was enough income for me to not go back to working my other jobs.

I totally love doing what I do, working my Tupperware business, because I can spend time with my daughter. I can be there to watch her grow and learn. She's my Tupper Tot, and I can work my schedule around her. So it's been wonderful for the both of us.

Tupperware has been a great fit for my background in nutrition because the parties give me an opportunity to educate people on the benefits of the foods that are used in the product demonstration.

And our products help you keep healthy foods on hand.

The Wonderlier® Bowl's powerful seal (pictured left) remains a popular demonstration at parties.

For a healthy lifestyle, you need to be organized and prepared.

That's why I love to do Custom Kitchen Planning. I love to help my customers organize. And at the same time, I can educate them on the food in their pantry. For example, one easy substitute is using honey in place of sugar. Making small changes can have a big impact on your health.

If your pantry is full of clutter, you need Custom Kitchen Planning. The organization plan definitely helps reduce household stress and can help you eat healthier too.
